ROGUE PUB IN SAN FRANCISCO

Rogue Nation's southern-most outpost has opened in San Francisco at 673 Union Street in the North Beach neighborhood--at the intersection of Powell, across from Washington Square Park. The Rogue Ales Public House/SFO will offer a selection of 22 Rogue Ales on tap, an eclectic selection of guest beers (draft and bottled), a full bar (wines and spirits), and the classic Rogue pub menu including salads, sandwiches, burgers (including Kobe Beef), and fish & chips. Rogue/SFO is open seven days a week from 11:00 am until 12:00 pm midnight! Rogue/SFO Phone:415-362-7880

Sunday September 14: Rogue Ales/SFO will open early, come join us for brunch and watch Lance Armstrong race in the San Francisco Grand Prix! And the beer of choice: Brutal Bitter (it is a brutal race, and this beer does have a lovely grapefruit-like aroma, perfect for brunch.) For details, visit www.sanfrancycling.com

Join Rogue Ales at the 22nd Annual Great American Beer Festival (GABF) and sample Old Crustacean, Younger's Special Bitter, Brutal Bitter, Smoke, and Chocolate Stout on tap! GABF will be held September 25-27 at the Colorado Convention Center in Denver. For details and ticket information, visit the official web page: <http://www.beertown.org/events/gabf/>

Folks from the Mid-Atlantic who want to go to the Mother of all Beer Festivals can join Ale Street News on their annual pilgrimage to GABF from September 27-30. The 4-day trip is priced at $595.00 and includes 3 nights lodging at the Adams Mark Hotel, 2 lunches, one dinner, entry to the private connoisseurs session of GABF and a variety of other activities. Call now 800-351-2537 or email tony@alestreetnews.com

Rogue I2PA HomeBrew

The folks at Beer, Beer and More Beer have launched a homebrew kit based on John Maier's award winning recipe for Imperial India Pale Ale (I2PA). This single malt (100% Maris Otter from Britain) and four hop recipe (Newport, Sterling, Cascade and Amarillo hops) which this homebrew store calls an IPA on steroids, is available on either extract or all grain kits. To learn more about the kits, visit <http://morebeer.com> and search on the word rogue!

Other Rogue Ales homebrew recipes have been published in the 5th Anniversary Issue of Brew Your Own Magazine (www.byo.com), and in Zymurgy, the official organ of the American Homebrewers Association. <http://www.beertown.org/homebrewing/index.html>

There is a new hop on the market called Newport. Some homebrewers have asked if there is a Rogue connection? Good question! An article describing the history of this new high-bittering alpha hop appeared on page 13 of the September 2002 issue of Agricultural Research. The article is on-line at:
<http://www.ars.usda.gov/is/AR/archive/sep02/hops0902.htm>

Newport was developed by USDA-ARS Geneticists John Henning and Al Haunold at Oregon State University in Corvallis. Rumor is at least one of them surfed in Newport, so the name appears to be locational, although Rogue Ale loyalists might like to disagree. And if James Brown is the Godfather of Soul Music, Henning and Haunold are the Godfathers of Hops. Their research has resulted in several important hop varieties like Crystal, Sterling and Horizon. All of which are key ingredients in the flavor profiles of many beers brewed in Newport at Rogue!

John Maier has been brewing with Newport for awhile and is really pleased with the results, which include his 2003 Oregon Brewers Fest elixir, Skull Splitter (aka, Black Brutal Bitter), and recent batches of Mogul, and Imperial India Pale Ale, available on tap at your local Rogue Ales Public House. So next time you enjoy a beer brewed in Newport, read the label and see if it was brewed with Newport!
